Chartered Teacher Programme 2023-24

Delivered by Beaumont School and Sir John Lawes School

WHAT IS THE CHARTERED TEACHER PROGRAMME?

The Chartered Teacher Programme is a pathway to gaining Chartered Teacher Status. It offers recognition to effective teachers, develops their expertise and celebrates excellence in the classroom, without any expectation of a formal leadership role. Assessment and accreditation are carried out by the Chartered College of Teaching.

We are proud that Beaumont School and Sir John Lawes School work in partnership with the Chartered College of Teaching to offer such a prestigious programme. Having seen its impact on our previous participants, we know that it is empowering, rigorous and intellectually stimulating.

This leaflet outlines our approach to the Chartered Teacher Programme and Certificate in Evidence-Informed Practice. It should be read in conjunction with the Chartered College's brochure, which provides more detail about the programme itself and is available from the Chartered College website: <https://chartered.college/chartered-teacher/>

BENEFITS TO THE PARTICIPANT

Those achieving Chartered Teacher Status will be recognised and accredited for evidence-informed, high quality teaching practice, benefiting the young people they teach. Participation in the programme will also support teachers' understanding of effective classroom practice, research and professional development, without requiring them to occupy a formal leadership position. These benefits accrue not only to individual participants, but also to their schools, because Chartered Teachers share their expertise and have an impact beyond their own classroom, contributing to a culture of learning and research engagement amongst their colleagues.

WHO WE ARE

We are a dedicated team of five colleagues from Beaumont and Sir John Lawes Schools. In addition to having experience of delivering the programme, each team member is either a CTeach graduate or has been a CTeach assessor.

OUR MODEL

We believe that participants can get the best out of the Chartered Teacher Programme by working as part of a cohort and taking advantage of the opportunities for collaboration and mutual support which this brings. Therefore we offer a structured approach in which we support a group of participants to gain CTeach accreditation over a period of around 15 months, tackling the different assessments in a logical progression. We provide a blend of face-to-face and online events, delivered by our team, alongside mentoring for every participant.

WHY BECOME CHARTERED WITH US?

In addition to the online information and support offered by the Chartered College with each assessment (details in their brochure), our participants can expect the following:

- Three face-to-face Saturday events, spread throughout the programme
- Two webinars to provide additional support
- An experienced mentor
- Feedback on the literature review from an expert in the field
- Access to the CTeach team who can help with questions and concerns
- A collegial experience as part of a local cohort

FEES AND ELIGIBILITY

The cost of undertaking the Chartered Teacher Programme with us is £845. This includes the Chartered College's registration, assessment and accreditation fees (£634 in total), so everything is covered.

Participants will need to be eligible for and hold full membership of the Chartered College of Teaching from the point of registration until the point of award, and must maintain membership in order to retain Chartered Teacher Status. They will need to have a minimum of three years experience as a practising classroom teacher at the point of final award.

THE CERTIFICATE IN EVIDENCE-INFORMED PRACTICE

The Certificate is one of the assessments in the Chartered Teacher Programme, which our participants will take first. For teachers who are interested in applying, but who are concerned that the full programme might be too much, we offer the Certificate as a standalone option for £135. Participants who take this route will work alongside the rest of our cohort to submit the Certificate in March 2023. If they wish to opt into the full programme afterwards, we will offer them a place on our next cohort, with the cost of the certificate deducted from the total fee.

'I have really enjoyed both the intellectual challenge and the opportunities to put what I have learnt into practice. I would highly recommend CTeach to anyone who wants to delve into the evidence surrounding teaching and learning and find out more about how it can inform and transform what they do in the classroom.'

Sophie Scott, CTeach participant

'CTeach is an enriching and thought provoking CPD programme that has allowed me to become a better teacher, to have valuable conversations with other colleagues, and to take ownership by engaging in educational research.'

Deepika Narula, CTeach participant

ORDER OF ASSESSMENTS

1. Certificate in Evidence-Informed Practice – submission March 2023
2. Development of Teaching Practice Award – submission August 2023
3. Professional Knowledge Award – submission March 2024
4. Certificate in Educational Research and Inquiry – submission March 2024
5. Professional Learning Profile – submission March 2024

Further details about the different assessments can be found in the Chartered College of Teaching's CTeach brochure.

HOW TO APPLY

We hope you will decide that the Chartered Teacher Programme is right for you. In order to apply, please complete our online application form, which you can find on our website:

<https://beaumontschool.com/chartered-teacher-programme/>

If you wish to apply for the Certificate in Evidence-Informed Practice rather than the full Chartered Teacher Programme, please do so using the same form.

There is an opportunity to indicate that this is your intention.

If you have questions before applying, or if you are a senior leader who is interested in the Chartered Teacher Programme on behalf of staff in your school, please contact charteredteacher@beaumont.school and we will respond as soon as possible.

Further information about Chartered Teacher Status is also available on the Chartered College of Teaching's website:
